THE TAIL OF THE DOG?

It is not the celebrated question of "The Lady or the Tiger?" which is now agitating the political circles of El Paso county, but one of greater importance and almost equal doubt. At least since the days of Charles Lamb, it has been an established principle of natural science that the dog should wag its tail, for the reason as the great humorist briefly expressed it, that the dog is the biggest, otherwise the tail would wag the dog. Now it is clearly evident from the application of the principle that the enemies of the El Paso Republicans being divided into two factions, that faction should do the wagging which has the preponderance of force and numbers.

But unfortunately for the harmony of the game, both Populists and Democrats want to be dog. The Populists are inclined to be haughty on the strength of the vote cast by disaffected Republicans and Democrats in fall, and while they are anxious to get as many Democratic votes as possible they want to pay for them no more than they believe them to be worth. On the other hand the Democrats, having made a big talk about principles at the County convention, now declare that no fusion is to be made, no compromise with principle, no dallying with the political heresies of the Populists, no endorsement of inexperienced and irresponsible candidates—unless the Democrats can get a pretty good share of the offices.

With the information now available it seems to be impossible to settle this very serious question decisively. Neither the dog nor the tail seems to possess the power to justify its claims to do the wagging. If, however, the election should take place with the matter in the present shape, we shall for the first time be able to estimate the strength of the real Populist vote in El Paso county, and in future will have a correct principle for the sake of the offices between Democrats and Populists there will be a basis to figure upon.

COLORADO SPRINGS BUSINESS.

There are always plenty of people in any city at any time ready to find fault with the business conditions. Perhaps during the past few months there has been more than the usual excuse for this kind of talk, but anyone who has been in other places in that time knows very well that we have stood the strain very much better than most other places, and that upon the whole there has been comparatively little to complain of here.

Is to be found in the statement of the First National bank of this city which we publish in another column to-day. This report was made to the Comptroller of the Currency at the close of business Oct. 3d. It shows a steady gain of many thousands in cash since the previous statement on July 12th, and only a slight falling off in the amount of deposits. During all the financial difficulty the bank stood not only unmoved but unmovable, and its reputation and solidity was a bulwark to the business men of the city.

A further evidence of the business prosperity in the city is the fact that there has not been a single failure here in the line of business. When the failures of corporations in other places are taken into consideration these facts are most creditable to our banks and business men. They ought to add to our reputation abroad, and advertise the city as a safe place in which to invest and do business.

When Governor Waite expressed himself against the enforcement of a law whose parentage is a debatable question, he acted in accordance with a notion so evidently erroneous that even a Populist ought to see it at once. But it is strange that the Governor does not propose the repeal absolutely of the assertion of a free silver plank or the platform of a party which is openly in favor of cheap paper money.

It is said that Commissioner Bount's report in regard to Hawaii is very much against the annexation of those islands to the United States. But as Mr. Blount went to Honolulu as the personal representative of President Cleveland, what more could he say or think?

The Populists, if they are not in the Democratic fight, don't like to be left out. Strange how they do love to be in it that way.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. Jas. B. Gregg, D. D.

The Jesuit missionaries in Armenia, as in Asia Minor, have recently been reinforced by a large number of priests, who are to be distributed in the various districts of the Ottoman Empire. Their purpose is to establish schools and colleges in which the Armenian youth may be educated in the Roman Catholic faith. Their efforts are directed chiefly to the Armenian Christians, who are the most intelligent and progressive people in the Turkish Empire. The Armenians are a branch of the Eastern Church, and have a liturgy in their own language. They have also a translation of the Holy Scriptures, and the whole is conducted by a native clergy. The Armenians are found in Asia Minor, Syria, Persia, Russia, Turkey, and in many other countries. They are a very industrious people, and are found in all the great cities of the East. They are the bankers, the merchants, the jewelers, and the money changers of the East. They are also the chief manufacturers of carpets, shawls, and other articles of commerce. They are found in all the great cities of the East, and are the most successful traders. They are also the most numerous of the Christian sects in the East. They are found in all the great cities of the East, and are the most successful traders. They are also the most numerous of the Christian sects in the East. They are found in all the great cities of the East, and are the most successful traders. They are also the most numerous of the Christian sects in the East.

Many missionaries were on the field. They converted the Emperor, built churches with the money from the royal treasury and translated Portuguese religious books into Chinese. The Chinese learned, and partly believed. Probably because the jealousies of the interest manifested in it

Rich parents who send their boys away to college are sometimes disposed to think that they are putting them into a place of comfort and luxury. On the contrary I believe that no class of young men are put to harder tests of character than those in that period of life as are college boys. The following utterance of President Eliot of Harvard College would be true with interest. In his speech at the alumni dinner last June he said: "As it is now forty years since I graduated at Harvard College my period of observation at this institution has been long enough to warrant me in arriving at some general conclusions regarding it. The first is that the average physique of the students here has been much improved during the past twenty-five years. My second conclusion is that the proportion of Harvard graduates who make downright failures in life is small. I mean that the proportion of those who through vice or folly come to naught in after-life is exceedingly small. Two Harvard undergraduates may stumble or slip or even fall heavily, but in the great majority of cases they recover themself and become a useful and honorable man. I defy any college president who knows much about the subsequent careers of the young men who have passed under his eyes not to be very optimist as regards the upward tendency of the race; the life successes greatly outweigh the failures to few."

—It is not discouraging to think how persistent, ceaseless and extended discussion may be made useless by a little knowledge. Scholars have spent years in attempting to prove that the Gospels, especially that of John, were written at a much later date than the First century and by other names than their reputed authors. But Professor Thayer of Harvard Divinity School says of the newly discovered Gospel according to Peter:

—Half a century of discussion is swept away by the recent discovery at a stroke. Brief as is the fragment it attests indubitably all four of our canonical books.

[Says The Christian Register: Here is The Investigator that does not believe in superstition, and yet it prints a quarter column on "Points in Palmistry." A man has to believe something. When he declines to believe in what is rational he is apt to believe ridiculous of what is irrational. Extremes meet. There are none so credulous as the unbelievers.

An interesting feature of the recent Church congress to consider Social and Economic Science was the reading of a paper by Mr. N. O. Nelson, head of the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing company of St. Louis. Its title was, "From Profit-Sharing to Co-operation," and it bore directly on the way in which profit sharing stands the test of hard times. Mr. Nelson's company has been conducted on profit sharing principles for eight years. It has, during these eight years, paid dividends on wages of 8 per cent per annum, 8 per cent dividends being first deducted on the capital invested. Employees who choose to do so are allowed to become shareholders in the company. Mr. Nelson stated that for the last two months the employees in his factories have been working full time on three quarters pay "for the double purpose of husbanding resources and joining in the hope that this unfavorable year, should there be any." The amount deducted from wages is to be made up out of future profits and the capital invested shares in the same ratio of appreciation as wages. In closing so satisfactory a review of the relations of capital and wages under profit-sharing conditions, Mr. Nelson expressed his own faith that "genuine co-operation will lead us out of the nervous scramble of competitive business into a reasonable system of mutual service."

PICS IN THE WALL.

A Curious Glimpse of Life in a Vineyard Town of Sunny France.

Dog Cart's Faithful Dog.

"Not in my part of the country. There are many little towns with great walls, and in the walls there are people and pigs. Oh, so many pigs."—Youth's Companion.

The Sovereign in Europe does not stand in need of a fresh oath of allegiance to show fidelity and loyalty on the accession to the throne of Emperors, Kings and Princes, but on the occasion of a visit, which takes place not unfrequently, to other countries, it is customary for the visitor to be received by just those of his colleagues who are nearest and even his relatives, to which he has accorded the greatest amount of kindness. Under these circumstances it is not astonishing that at the same place his principal reliance was a sagacious and large Dutch dog with short, mouse-colored hair and quiet, as the dog was a young donkey.

The dog, a gift of his father in law, King Christian of Denmark, is the successor of a similar hound, which lost its life in the terrible railroad accident at Borki, when the imperial train was entirely destroyed by the czar and family escaping all injury save the shock to their nerves in the midst of the confusion ensuing. Alexander's present to his host only by the side when he walks out, as he has learned to do, but he always precedes when the carriage is entered and rushes on in front and only stops occasionally to look back at his master, to see if he is following. Without exception he follows the array of Chase connections at all junctions with trains for all points North, South and East, made by the Great Rock Island route.

The Priority of Tipping.

"The practice of tipping is growing rapidly in this country," said an observing man to me, "and I suppose that there are those who, ten or twenty years ago in Europe, tipped at all expect them now, and perhaps who expect [illegible] among gilt tops, while men similarly employed in this country would not think of it. In some branches of work gratuities do not appear to be well defined.

"In Boston, for instance, many strangers who sit upon the box seat of an omnibus and tip the driver for information or for the holdings and pokes of interest on the way, offer him a tip and he accepts it cheerfully and as a matter of course. A visitor in New York who rode upon the box seat of one of the Fifth avenue stages offered willingly and courteously a tip. One accepted it in the spirit in which it was offered, but not with the offhand manner that would have characterized the London driver. The other, with perfect civility, but with unmistakable decision, declined it."—New York Sun.

Detecting Impure Air.

Mr. John Aitken has, it is said, invented an instrument by which the degree of impurity which may exist in the air of any room or place can be determined easily and accurately. It is a development of his invention for counting the dust particles held in suspension in the air, each of them being based on the ascertained fact that a particle of dust at a certain temperature and degree of moisture in the atmosphere becomes a free surface which attracts the moisture, and thus turns into a cloud particle. By passing a jet of steam through a tube containing air impregnated with dust, Mr. Aitken has found that colors, varying from a dingy green to deep blue, are exhibited by the particles of moisture thus formed.

Each of the tints, which may be classified by graded glass, indicates the degree in which the air is impregnated with dust particles. It may be mentioned that Dr. Angus Smith found as great a percentage of carbonic acid in the air of country places as in towns, and that in Salisbury he found more on mountains than in plains.—English Mechanic.

The Vanilla Beans.

A Portland wholesale firm recently received the largest consignment of vanilla beans that ever came into the state of Maine. It is worth $20,000, though its bulk would occupy but six or eight feet. Imagine a tin box eight centimeters wide and seven inches deep and filled [illegible] bundles of long slim beans. Imagine that quantity of vanilla worth nearly $20,000, and you will have some idea of the value of the vanilla beans. The consignment consists of twenty-eight of these tin boxes.

The bean is so valuable because it grows in but very few sections of the earth's surface, and is difficult of culture because it is a parasite of certain trees. The particular beans came from Mexico and are their forerunners of the best. No only but the native can cure them properly; the secret being handed down from father to son and kept a secret, though many Americans have endeavored to discover it.—Bangor Commercial.

Cleaning the Table.

An Atchison woman who can't afford to keep help has her children clear the table. Immediately upon leaving the table each child takes his dishes and knife and fork and the kitchen comes to a pause both his chair and folds his napkin. In half a minute the table is cleared off in this way. They are equally active and efficient in their work.—Atchison Globe.

Mr. W. C. Baker of New Jersey claims to be the inventor of the "Merrimac." Mr. Baker's "Merrimac" consists of a hatchway cover, placed at the corner of a hatchway on a vessel. He keeps on deck and buys all the fresh and fresh eggs that are offered him.

Hoyt's "A Texas Steer."

Hoyt's best comedy, "A Texas Steer," which has been seen here so often that everybody is familiar with the many features that make it make it the most interesting laugh producer in the entire category of funny plays, will be the attraction at the Opera house Tuesday evening. It is easy to understand why this merry effort of Hoyt's has achieved a vogue that is not enjoyed by any other comedy that has been produced in recent years if one only stops to consider that it is about the only play of its class that is exclusively original, both in regard to its characters and in the manner of construction the master mind of America's chief comedy writer is apparent in every line and situation, thus giving the piece an individuality that will always cause it to be regarded as one of the best things Mr. Hoyt ever wrote. Its presentation here has always been doubly welcome on account of the care that has been taken to put it before the public in an artistic manner.
